

CITY DESTROYED!

Iron Druid Claims Credit - Martial Law Declared

The super villain, Iron Druid, has claimed credit for the destruction of the city of Chicago, following city officials refusing to meet his demands for one billion dollars in cash.

Aided by his henchman, Abdantas, the masked villain perpetrated his ghastly deed in the early morning hours while most city residents lay sleeping.

Governor Hodgepodge McDoodle declared a state of martial law to be in effect, in the aftermath of the destruction wrought by Iron Druid's phantasmagoria bomb.

Madcow Milkshakes Cause Pandemic

In what health officials are describing as a bizarre turn of events, a pandemic has resulted from what the FBI has described as intentional tampering by a new super villain cult that calls itself the Bovine Posse.

International arrest warrants have been issued by Interpol for cult members, led by the charismatic leader of the group, milk man Lenny Lactose.

Mayor, City Council Missing

Having refused to meet a one billion dollar ransom demand, Mayor Banzor Plumbbutton and the entire Chicago city council are missing, following the Iron Druid making good on his threat to erase the windy city from the map.

Last seen wearing a drip dry lime green leisure suit circa 1976, Mayor Plumbbottom had flat out refused to negotiate with what he called "spandex wearing terrorists."

A nationwide candle vigil will be held, tonight, after the Lakers-Bulls basketball game concludes.

SYRIAN GOVERNMENT COLLAPSES

Bashar al-Assad Resigns, Damascus In Chaos

In his final speech as the Grand Poo-bah of the Syrian regime, Bashar al-Assad resigned, today, announcing that he intended to pursue a lifelong ambition of being Syria's first underwater astronaut.

Neighboring countries had their military forces on alert, as loud disco music blared non-stop at all Syrian government buildings across the war-torn nation.

Turkish officials were visibly excited at the news of al-Assad's departure, with the Turkish Parliament passing a resolution calling for a new color of shoe polish to be created in al-Assad's honor.

Meanwhile, in Singapore, a new bowling alley was built, and free potato chips were introduced on all flights into and out of the country.

What any of this has to do with a superhero board game is unclear, but hopefully, this example newspaper will serve its purpose - World domination!
